

TELLING YOUR HEALING STORY

a workshop with Annan Paterson

Through the ages, people have shared personal story as a way to illustrate the human experience and inspire others. This one-day workshop is designed for those living with chronic or life-threatening illness, or any life-altering condition, to explore their own "healing story." It will empower you to tell your healing story both for self-expression and for others who need to hear your message. Annan has used story telling and improvisational acting to explore her mortality and her experience with ovarian cancer in 1989. Performance and public speaking have been lifelong interests in her work as actor, school psychologist and community activist.
